Dear hiring manager,

Over the course of my journey in high tech, I have gained a lot of first hand industry experience at top tier companies and start-ups (Netscape, Sun Microsystems, McAfee.com, UCSF Medical Center, FDB Health), earned a master of science in IT management, learned the latest software design patterns, and traveled—as you probably know, the world has become a much smaller place.

My exposure to a variety of people and cultures deepens my understanding and appreciation for the complexity of human experience. This has included learning to understand and work effectively with people from diverse backgrounds. It is precisely this eclectic combination of soft skills, personal awareness, and understanding of technology and software development that make me an adept software development leader.

At no time in my career have I been more skilled and ready to meet this challenge than now. I have spent years in the trenches, preparing, learning, keeping my skills up, doing--so that one day I would be ready for that next big step. Today, I am ready for that next step. I am looking for a challenging opportunity leading a software development team here in the Bay Area.

Sincerely,
Gregor Fisher MSITM, PMP, JNCIA, MCSE, MCSA
http://www.gregorfisher.net

We cannot change the direction of the wind…but we can always adjust our sails –Rishika Jain